/ Special Attacks

Entangling Ectoplasm (Sp): 15/d throw tanglefoot bag at targets within 30 ft. that affects incorporeal creatures, dissipates in 1d3 rounds. Entangled creatures take -2 to atk, -4 to Dex, move at half speed, and must roll a concentration check with a DC of 15 + spell level to cast; Reflex DC 15 or be unable to move [...]

Malevolent Ectoplasm (Sp): 20 rounds/d black tentacles (CMB +26, +31 vs. already grappled; CMD 36; constrict 1d6+4) that affects ethereal/incorporeal, centered on Angærað without affecting her.

Starburn (Su): hex; every 1d4 rounds, 12/d creature within 30 ft. takes 10d6 fire, emits bright light for 1 round; Fort DC 32 halves damage, negates light.

Stardust (Sp): 15/d creature within 30 ft. takes -6 on attacks and perception checks for 10 rounds (sightless creatures are immune to this effect), emits candlelight, gains no benefit from concealment or invisibility effects as shiny motes of starlight concentrate upon it.

/ Mythic Abilities

Hard to Kill (Ex): Whenever Angærað is below 0 hit points, she automatically stabilises without needing to attempt a Constitution check. Bleed damage still causes her to lose hit points when below 0 hit points. She doesn't die until her total number of negative hit points is equal to or greater than double her Constitution score.

Inspired Spell (Su): As a standard action, Angærað can expend one use of mythic power to cast any one divine spell without expending a prepared spell or spell slot. The spell must be on one of her divine class spell lists (or your domain or mystery spell list) and must have a casting time of "1 standard action" (or less). She doesn't need to have the spell prepared, nor does it need to be on her list of spells known. She treats her caster level as 2 levels for this spell.

Eldritch Breach (Su): Angærað is adept at breaching magical defenses and resistance to her magic. When attempting a caster level check to dispel an effect, overcome spell resistance, or otherwise determine whether her magic affects a target (such as with knock or neutralize poison), she rolls twice and takes the higher result.

/ Gear

Hand of Voolthow: This shriveled divine appendage hums with profound necromantic energy. Undead will refuse to attack its possessor, and creatures of the fey planes will hold her in greater esteem. It can be used to raise dead without any material components as per create greater undead (2/d) or create undead (at will), and the maximum number of undead HD under its control is doubled. However, as long as that maximum limit is reached, the spell-like abilities do not function.

Hansa's Chronicling Tome: This sacred book holds infinite pages upon which it records the events that transpire in the world around it. Its possessor is immune to deterioration of her memory, and is unaffected by temporal changes. It can also detect disturbances in timeflow that occurred within the last 48 hrs at a 50 ft. radius.

Ring of Curing: Whenever Angærað casts a conjuration spell of the healing subschool, all maximums to the level-dependent healing provided by that spell increase by 2 (e.g. heal would cure 170 hp).

Ring of Summoning Affinity (Inevitable): Angærað adds arbiter to the 3rd-level list, zelekhut to the 7th-level list, kolyarut to the 8th-level list, and marut to the 9th-level list of monsters she can summon. Also, once per day on command she can use this ring to summon an arbiter, as if by summon monster III.

Pearl of the Sirines: Angærað's swim speed is 60 feet, and she can cast spells and act underwater without hindrance.

Mnemonic Vestment: The surface of this delicate-looking blue silk robe is adorned with tiny embossed runes across its entire surface. Once per day Angærað may use a spell slot to cast a spell from a deciphered scroll she is carrying as if she knew that spell. Activating the robe is not an action, but casting the spell otherwise works as normal, including casting time, providing components or foci, and so on. Using a mnemonic vestment's properties does not consume the written source.
